One Stop Logistics at the heart of Ireland's Mid-West

Limerick Cargo Handling Limited (LCH) is a subsidiary of Shannon Foynes Port Company and has exclusive rights for stevedoring and cargo handling at Limerick Dock, one of the six terminals on the Shannon Estuary.

Established in 1973 following a restructuring of the dock labour force in Limerick, the company and its staff embody a century's long tradition and experience in stevedoring, while employing flexible, efficient and state of the art systems and work practices to ensure that a competitive and customer focused service is provided.

The company specialises in all forms of bulk cargo handling – liquid, solid and break bulk – as well as having particular expertise in exceptional and project cargoes; in the case of the latter, LCH has played a pivotal role in facilitating much of the special equipment and products which have been imported to service the major infrastructural investment programmes on the west coast of Ireland.

Limerick port serves as a key gateway for importers and exporters across the West of Ireland, and indeed into a wide area of the Midlands. Its location beside key road networks offers ease of access and avoidance of congestion.

LCH employs a range of dedicated equipment for cargo handling, including cranes, hoppers, heavy duty forklifts and loaders. The dedicated and permanent stevedores also have long experience of using heavy lift cranes for project cargoes. The company has recently invested significantly in Information Technology systems to provide a state of the art service for customers, allowing online stock control and distribution instructions.

The work of LCH does not end with loading or unloading of cargo; the company offers a full end-to-end logistics service, including stock management and arranging for onward transportation, together with vessel operator liaison, thus providing a true "one stop" point of contact for its clients

One of the key contributors to the competitive service is the availability of quayside storage and warehousing, thus eliminating the need for any secondary handling; this also ensures fast vessel turnaround, thus minimising shipping costs.

LCH welcomes enquiries and strives to provide fast and reliable responses; its experienced staff can provide advice on how to optimise and simplify your logistics needs.
